

Language requirements

Proof of proficiency in German for English-language degree programmes

In order to enrol in your degree programme, you need to meet certain language requirements.

In case you have not yet provided proof of the German language skills required according to the letter of admission, the following applies:

German language skills required in English-language degree programmes can be acquired during your studies. The relevant proof must be submitted by the end of the degree programme at the latest. Your degree programme concludes at the end of the semester in which the final curricular examination is completed.

Please observe the specific requirements of your degree programme:

<https://www.th-deg.de/en/apply#language-requirements>

If you fail to meet this obligation by the deadline, your admission to our university must be revoked retroactively.

I hereby acknowledge that I accept the language requirements applicable to my degree programme. I have read and understood the above language regulation and the associated implication for admission and will submit proof of the missing German language skills within the deadline.
